Our Garden is Planted

As many of you know, we have been working on ways to feed our families. This includes, working with food pantries, providing gift cards to local grocery stores, teaching food and nutrition classes, and working with children and adults on safely preparing food.

Last year, after meeting with representatives from local food pantries, we learned that our families and many others were turning down fresh produce because they didn't know who to prepare it. To counteract this problem, we teamed up with our local University of Tennessee Extension Office to provide cooking classes that taught our guests and others from our community how to prepare packaged and fresh food. Our primary concerns in teaching this class was education on food and nutrition to promote good habits for our guests to prevent later health-related issues and to provide them with sound nutrition.

As a continuation of this effort, we have not planted our gardens to ensure fresh produce is easily available. We appreciate Dean , from Roane County Master Gardeners, for his help designing and planting our garden and Barnhardt Construction for building these containers.
